With over a decade of legal experience, Christine Curtis serves as Gallagher's Legal Support Services Manager, bringing strengths in support management, organizational and process improvement, and cross-functional collaboration. Her leadership blends compliance with compassion, anchored in clear communication and a deep commitment to professional development.

Christine's experience spans both public service, where she worked as a Paralegal Specialist, and private practice, where she served as Legal Support Services Coordinator at a top AmLaw 100 firm. She earned her Master of Legal Studies with honors from American University's Washington College of Law and holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Applied Liberal Studies, also with honors, from Morgan State University.

Beyond Gallagher

Outside of work, Christine enjoys creating geometric, textured art, traveling, and attending live music events. She values creativity, culture, and experiences that inspire both connection and reflection.
